Each chapter has in it a large amount of pure gold. "-{N. Y. Exminer."

"The homely provide is but the string of pearls. The style is one of simple case and of chaste beauty. We are free to express our admiration of a volume characterized, as this is, by sound common sense, manly feeling, a high moral and truly practical tone, and a simple force and beauty of thought and expression which are very rarely combined."-{N. Y. Evangelist.
"A remarkable book, a work of sterling morit, which appeals to every intelligent reader. No doubt it will reach a thousand editions."—I finished/pila City Item.

"It is not only entertaining, but tinged with a beautiful view of moral truth, and expressed in language full of rich thoughts."

"The evident results of enture, reading, reduction and experience, as practical a series as any of the PRESENT CENTURY."—[Loston Gazette.
